

“Nuclear Winter” in China

Thesis: Despite China's efforts to make the country's air cleaner, the air pollution is still causing issues because its making schools to close outdoor activities, and creating crops to die from the lack of sunlight.

- There has been major air pollution, in the major cities of China such as Beijing, Shanghai, and Chandu.
- Schools have special domes where outdoor activities would have been held.
- A man named Li Guixin has tried to sue his local government for not making an effort to stop the sir pollution.
- This smog also has an effect on agriculture, causing crops and other plants to die from lack of sunlight.
- The air pollution ratings are sometimes above ten times that the World Health Organization, which is twenty.
- Other countries such as Japan and South Korea are worried about smog clouds traveling and polluting their air.

